DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' Amendment Under 37 C.F.R. §1.111 has been examined and remarks reviewed. The drawings and specification are amended. Claims 5, 7, 8, 18, 19, and 21 are pending.

1. Although Applicants' amendment is considered persuasive, Applicant's claims are not yet in an allowable condition. In this case, Examiner has restarted prosecution and accordingly this second non-final action on the merits issues.

Drawings

2. The replacement drawing sheet were received on 8 August 2003. These drawings are approved

Specification

3. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The following title is suggested: A Method for Reduced Power Consumption.

4. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: In the specification, the acronym HDL does not stand for "hardware design language level". Although Applicants are free to be their own lexicographers, where, as here, Applicants apparently intend to use the term's plain and well-known meaning, the term should be accurately defined. HDL is an acronym that commonly stands for Hardware Description Language; but see Applicants' specification, page 5, line 12.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Objections

5. Claims 5, 8, 18, 19, and 21 are objected to because of the following informalities: Pursuant to claim 5, at line 4, change "percycle" to - -per-cycle- -.; additionally lines 6-7 requires rephrasing; Further pursuant to claim 5, Applicants reference "the previous state" and "don't care state"; Not only does the phrase "the previous state" lack antecedent basis, but it has not been previously established that the control signals have states. Pursuant to claim 8, at line 2, the word from is misspelled. Pursuant to claim 18, lines 3-4 require rephrasing for clarity; additionally, line 4, contains an unattached "s". At line 5, "at a first function boundary", Applicants should state where the first function boundary exists (e.g. is it the first function boundary of the microprocessor? the template?). Additionally, pursuant to claim 18, "the updated microcode function block" lacks antecedent basis; "the one control signal" lacks antecedent basis; "the updated microcode function block" and "the control bit" lacks antecedent basis. Pursuant to claim 19, it is not only unclear what "true Os", "true Is" represent, but the "s" should be changed to 's'; at the last line "function" should be plural. Additionally, pursuant to claim 19, at line 13, chang "sill" to - -still- -; at line 20, capitalize Verilog. Pursuant to claim 21, "the control signal" and "the previous state" lacks antecedent basis. Additionally, at the last line, signals is misspelled. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

6. Claims 5, 7, 8, 18, 19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Applicants reference the term "test sweep" in the specification and the claims. However, Applicants' specification does not disclose a clear meaning of the term "test sweep". Apparently a test sweep is used to determine many things, but confusion still reigns regarding what a test sweep does; the definition of a test sweep and the scope of its application is unknown. A search of the prior art reveals that "test sweep" is not a common term in the art. Therefore, Applicants have the burden of clearly and adequately defining this term.

7. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

8. Claims 5, 7, 8, 18, 19 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential structural cooperative relationships of elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the necessary structural connections. See MPEP § 2172.01. Pursuant to claim 5, the relationship between control signals and new data is unclear. Pursuant to claim 18, the omitted structural cooperative relationships are between function types and microprocessor; it is unclear whether function types exist within the microprocessor; additionally, the relationship between the per-cycle basis updating and the template and the design specification is unclear; further the relationship between the first function boundary and the rest of the claim is unclear; still further, the relationship between the opcode group and the rest of the claim is undefined and hence unclear. Pursuant to claim 19, although it is clear that Applicants are outlining method steps, the relationship between the various claim limitations is unclear, e.g. the relationship between a template and the per-bit basis; the relationship between the test sweep and the bit-to-bit interconnections; the relationship between function counts and function types; the relationship between full regression and debugging and the templates. Pursuant to claim 21, the relationship between control signals and new data is unclear. Claims dependent from the rejected base claims are likewise rejected.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Please reference the PTO-892 for a complete listing.
